Weather Key Points

Regional Operations Center

Western Region

Monday, August 1

- Scattered showers and thunderstorms will again be noted across the southern California mountains and deserts, Sierra, and northern mountains Monday. A few storms are also possible for far western portions of the Central Valley. Scattered showers and thunderstorms will linger over the Sierra and far northern mountains each day through midweek, with chances again increasing across southern California by late in the week.
 - Thunderstorms Monday and Tuesday across far northern California will bring a threat for dry lightning and gusty and erratic winds, yielding elevated to critical fire weather conditions over much of Siskiyou and Modoc Counties
 - Heavy rainfall is also possible with some storms through Tuesday, and may lead to localized flash flooding. The greatest threat for heavy rain Monday will be over the southeastern Sierra in portions of Inyo County, much of the Mojave Desert, the mountains of San Bernardino and Riverside Counties, and the Apple and Lucerne Valleys where a Flood Watch is in effect through Monday night.
 - The threat for heavy rain will spread north along the Sierra and across the Klamath Mountains and Modoc Plateau Monday and Tuesday
 - Some localized burn scar impacts are also possible depending on the location of heaviest rainfall. At this time, there are no specific burn scars of most concern.
- Cooler, more seasonable early August temperatures are expected for all areas Monday and continue through late week.
